Each one has the same OnActionPerformed() method. void actionPerformed(ActionEvent e) { // check which button was pressed System.out.println("event: " + e.getActionCommand()); if(e.getActionCommand() == "A"){ System.out.println("A Button was pressed"); } if(e.getActionCommand() == "B"){ System.out.println("B Button was pressed"); } } I need to know which button I pressed. I've searched but couldn't find a method similar to the one used by C# in Visual Studio: System.Diagnostics.Debug.WriteLine("Clicked button: " + e.Source + " Clicked button's command: " + e.Command + " Clicked button's text: " + e.Text + " Clicked button's modifiers: " + e.Modifiers + " Clicked button's screen position
